Section 1: Introduction

A. What is a Résumé?

A résumé is a typed document that summarizes your skills, experience, and accomplishments. It is a quick advertisement of who you are. Your résumé lets the potential employer know who you are in a very short amount of time. Because the employer only spends a short amount of time looking at your résumé, it is important that it has no mistakes. You want to read, proofread, and edit your résumé many times to make sure it is perfect! Watch this short video clip from the TV show Friends to see what happens when you don't proofread your résumé.

How much time does an employer usually spend reviewing a résumé?

- A. 1 minute
- B. 6 seconds
- C. 3 minutes

If you chose B, you are correct! An employer usually looks at each résumé for about 5-7 seconds before deciding to see that person for an interview. This shows how important it is to have an excellent résumé.

Did you know?

- 76% of résumés are discarded for an unprofessional email address.
- 88% throw away your résumé when you include a photo.
- 1 spelling or grammar mistake and the employer will throw your résumé in the trash.

Section 2: Helpful Tips

Tip 1: Include important sections

Not all résumés are the same, but there are some common sections that they all should include. The important sections are:

Heading: This should include your formal name, address, telephone number, and email address. Make sure email address is appropriate.

Objective: Employers often say this is the most important part of a résumé. It is a 2-3 sentence explanation of your experience and the job you are looking for.

Education: This should include dates, name of school(s), degrees, licenses, credentials and certificates. Include the subject you are currently studying.

Experience: In this section, you should include previous employers, their locations, your dates of employment, and your job title. You should include at least two one-line descriptions of what your job duties and responsibilities were. Use power words to start each of these descriptions. Do not use “I” in descriptions.

Additional Skills and Information: This section should highlight any technical or specialized skills you have that are applicable to the position.

References: You should have 2-3 people who have observed your work habits (employers, teachers, coaches, etc.). Make sure you have asked their permission to include them as references. Create a separate list of references including their names, addresses, employers, job titles, and phone numbers.

Answer the Question: Does the Section 2 résumé on the LLC Tutoring Website include all of the sections? If not, which sections are missing?

Tip 2: Use power words

To make your résumé more noticeable to the employer, use power words that match the position you want. The most powerful words are verbs. And the most powerful verbs are action verbs. As a result, you should use plenty of action verbs to describe your previous job responsibilities and current skills.

Creative skills	Example Power Words	Teaching skills
create	administer	advise
illustrate	allocate	clarify
integrate	analyze	enable invent	budget	encourage perform	calculate	facilitate

Read the Section 2 Résumé again. In the space below, list the power words in the résumé that help to make it more noticeable to the employer.

Tip 3: Be Honest and Relevant

Watch another scene from Friends \(Section 2 Video\) and answer the questions below.

What are three skills that Joey lied about on his résumé?

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

When seeking out employment at any type of company, it is important that you are honest with the information that you are presenting in your résumé. As you saw in the scene, Joey lied about some of his skills in hopes of gaining attention from potential employers. The problem with lying is that you are completely getting off on the wrong foot with these potential employers. Not only that, but you also run the risk of being fired from the company which you are applying to. If a company discovers that you have been dishonest in the way that you presented yourself in your résumé, they are legally able to fire you.

What was one skill that Joey can do?

Another important tip is to tailor your résumé to the job you're applying for. Make sure that the information you provide on your résumé is relevant for the job. For example, Joey could drink a gallon of milk in 10 seconds, but is it really relevant to being a good actor? Remember, each job you apply for will have a unique set of requirements. Unlike Joey, you should create a résumé so that your skills and experience will align with the specific responsibilities of the job you're applying for.

Section 3: Résumé Critique

Look at the résumé on the next page. This is an example of a résumé that has not been edited or proofread. Each of the arrows points to a problem area in the résumé. Identify the problem and explain how it could be fixed or improved. Write your recommendations in the boxes provided. You will discuss your answers with a tutor when you're finished.
